SURGEONS GAVE HIM ETHER AND HE DIED. James F. Wall, thirty-one years old, of No. 100 North Elliott Place, died on Wednesday at the Brooklyn Hospital just after being put under the influence of ether for a surgical operation rendered necessary by necrosis of the bone in one of his toes. There were several surgeons ready to assist in the operation and he was examined carefully before the anaesthetic was administered. He took it kindly, but was extremely nervous and after about four drachms of the ether had administered he was seized with a spasm of the t, and all efforts to resuscita'e him faired. Death due to parulysis of the heart. Mr. Wall was a t in the Surrogate's once. He left a wife.

MR. HIRSH ASKS A PERTINENT QUESTION. The examination of Pierre Parsells on the charge of accepting a gold watch to influence his action in appointing Frank Remington to a position in the Navy Yard was continued before United States Commissioner Bellows yesterday afternoon. Horace O. Case, of Hartford, Conn., said he had known Joseph L. Remington for fifteen years. Remington was for one year president and for one year treasurer of the Washington Lodge, No. 15, of Hartford, to which the washington Lodge, No. 13, of Hardold, witness belonged. Up to the time of Remington's leaving Hartford he bore a most excellent reputation, and he never knew him to say anything false. On cross-examination Mr. Hirsh asked him if that reputation was not the one Remington had before going off with the funds of the lodge. Mr. Case said it was, that the raines of the longs. Mr. case said it was, that the whole amount that Remington took was between $1,500 and $1,700, but he afterward returned $1,000 and got a receipt in full for the dobt. Mr. Hirsh wanted to know if that was honorable conduct, and the witness asked to be excused from answering. The case was adjourned until November 15.

TO EXHIBIT MANY FINE HORSES.

SOME OF THE ANIMALS WHICH WILL BE SEEN IN THE BIG GARDEN BUILDING.

The success of the National Horse Show Association's great exhibition, which will open in the Madison Square Garden Amphitheatre on November 10, is now prac tically assured. The programmes put forth by the association at its five preceding exhibitions have all been of high class, and have in consequence received the approval and enthusiastic support of all lovers of torseficalt. This year's programme fairly bristles with good things, and from the appearance of the entry list it would seem that the owners and breeders in this country had made a determined effort to secure an exhibition which should is without a parallel in the history of nations. Nears, 1.100 horses will enter the ring in the six days of the show.

The first exhibit of the association, in 1883, was entirely successful, yet it is doubtful whether any of the animals which on that occasion took first affi second prizes would receive even an honorable mention now. One of the happiest features of the coming show will he the large increase of entries among the thorough-breds, valch now number fourteen. William H. Cheever sends Helicon, s son of Cardinal York, the Cesarewitch winner. Greenland, winner of the Great Metropolitan at Jerome Park, will represent the Madison stud. Others on the ist are Regent, Snarpeatcher, Black Dean, and Cavalier. The show of trotters is of exceptional quality and strength. Six famous stallions, including Mambrino King, Chimes and Favorite Wilkes, will be shown each with four of his get, thus bringing thirty horses into the ring at one time. C. J. Hamlin will be seen behind Belle Hamlin and Justina, while J. W. Ogden will exhibit Loo and Margery Daw, and Colonel Kip will drive Fastrade and Katrine. Fash-ion and beauty in the arena boxes will be profoundly stirred by the spectacle of fifteen tandens, which will tangle themselves up in the ring while twelve four-in-hands will add their terrors to the scene. Last, but by no manner of means least. In interest and impor-tance is the exhibition of police horses by mounted officers, each of whom will give a practical lifestration of the best method of stopping a runaway steed.

WEBSTER'S FATE IN THE JURY'S HANDS.

The jury in the case of Charles Webster, who killed James McNeill last August, was locked up for the night by Judge Cowing in Part I of General Sessions at 10:15 o'clock last evening. It had been out a little over five hours. An hour before, it had addressed to Cowing a question about whether Webster would be sent to an asylum if he were found not guilty on account of insanity. The Judge called the jury to the court-room to tell them that the Court would decide what was to be done with the prisoner in case he were found to be insane when he fired the fatal shot. The jury then retired again.

The trial was opened in the morning by William F. Howe's summing up for the prisoner. As he dwelt on Mrs. Webster's intimacy with McNeill, she came so wrought up that she gave a shrick and fell to the floor in a faint. She was taken from the courtoom. Mr. Howe reviewed the testimony to show how to proved that his client was insane when he killed the ker of his happy home. Colonel A. H. H. Dawson summed up for the prosecution, giving his reasons for believing that Webster was a sane man. Judge Cowing charged the jury to find Webster guilty if they believed that his insanity had not been proved. He read them the law on the different degrees of criminal homicide, and the jury retired at 4:07 o'clock. Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder In Quality, In Strength, Leads All.

COULD IT HAVE BEEN WORSE!

From The Boston Post.

I have often heard of the airs that men give themselves when they are suddenly raised (or lowered it may be) to an official position. But till lately I never knew of a case in which the mere tact of a man's having been "mentioned" as a candidate produced this unfortunate effect. Very recently I happened to be in a shop when a self-important person marched in, gave a few directions in an arrogant voice, and stalked away. His manner was so extreme that I asked who be might be. "Oh," was the reply, "that is Mr. You see he was talked of lately for of —, and it makes him rather topy just now." Great heavens, I said, what if the man had been nominated—what if he had actually been elected! From The Boston Post.

A STALLION SEIZED WITH HYDROPHOBIA.

From The Providence Journal.

The blooded and valuable stallion Wilksie, belonging to George W. Paton, proprietor of the Riverside Hotel. at Riverside, died at an early hour Friday morning of hydrophobia. Several weeks ago, of a Sanday morning, when Mr. Paton went into his stable he saw a very wild-looking dog glaring at him, and he tried to drive it from the premises. The animal sprang at him and attempted to bite, but Mr. Paton selzed a pitchfork and turned it saide. The cur darried into the stall where the stallion was kept and snapped at the horse's heels, although it was not noticed at the time that the horse was bitten. From the stable the mad dog went straight for the hotel, and made a jump for a window opening off the plazra. Mr. Paton again tried to impale the brute with the pitchfork, when it made frantic efforts no sink its teeth into his fiesh. Fortunately Mr. Paton dispatched it with the weapon he held before it could bite him.

A few days ago Wilksie's groom went into the box stall and fed him, and then noticed nothing out of the way with the horse. A minute or two later, however, when about to be groomed for the day, the stallion never before victous, came at the man with open mouth and caused a husty retreat. Wilksie became more and more unmanageable, until Thursday evaning he began to bite himself in each side. With great difficulty a chain was piaced around his neck, but nothing could be done with him, and the gate of his box stail had to be braced to prevent him from knocking it down in his frantic dashes and planges against it. The poor animal was in horrible-ugony, and for hours he spun around almost like a boy, biting his sides, and so savagely would be dart toward anybody who approached that the olibe horse in the stable, including at the mad stailing set out and injure them. About 12:30 o'clock in the morning, while Wilksie was in his most violent and frighthil paroxyfins, he suddenly fell to the floor dead. most the floor dead.

DR. EMILY KEMPIN'S LECTURE.

HER FIRST ONE ON LAW TO A CLASS AT THE CITY UNIVERSITY.

Dr. Emily Kempin, who took her degree at Zurich, telivered her first lecture on law at the University of the City of New-York yesterday afternoon to an audience of women. She was clad in a becoming gown of black, with velvet trimmings, and wore a black hat, the emblems of her degree. Dr. Kempin's locture was an ntroductory one upon the study of law. She said that of a new era in the higher education of their sex she looked upon herself as an agent simply, and hoped rould have the pleasure of listening to a woman wh had secured the degree of doctor of laws from the University of the City of New-York.

That time would come. The class was now small, but it would one day be large. And that was not all. The departure would find imitators in other cities and other states. The cause of the higher education of women had won a victory. Dr. Kempin then explained the meaning of law and said that it was as necessary that women should understand it as men. If knowledge was power, it was power for women as well as

Dr. Kempin's lecture was the first of forty or fifty which she will deliver to the women of this city under he auspices of the Women's Legal Education Society.
